Eight Men Killed. A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT IN THE CITY OF CINCIN-

NATI. [Special dispatch to the Washington Post.] CINCINNATI, June 5 .- A terrible accident occurred late this afternoon at the burned building of Post & Co. About forty men were employed in cleaning away the debris, when the luterior wall gave way and fell with a great crash, bringing down with it a portion of the second, third, fourth, and fifth floors, together with the men who were at work on them. About thirty men went down and eight of them were killed. Ten were seriously injured and the remainder more or less hurt. Some of the men had a miraculous escape. Joseph Kinsey, a member of the firm of Post & Co., was in the structure, but not wounded. The killed, so far as learned, are: Daniel Cronin, William Hammer, Charles Langreth, Jerome Symes, and four bodies not identified. Steve Haves is dying. William Hammill, Jerome Helleger, Edward P. Havemeyer, and several others, names unknown, were badly hurt. The scene in the vicinity was most heartrending. The injured and dying were placed in neighboring rooms, and received aid. The street was filled with anxious friends identifying the loved ones among the dead, or seeking them out in hospitals. Only a small part of the damage was done at the first fall. Just as those who were injured were being removed a second fall occurred, which did most of the damage. The men are still at work, and other bodies may yet be found. A number of physicians are on band rendering medical aid, and everything possible is being done to alle-viate the sufferings of the injured. Later .- The following bodies have been recovered since the last report: William Scheck, fifteen years old; George Berns, eighteen years, and Frank Irving, tifteen years. John McGarry is reported still buried in the debris. None of the wounded are fatally injured.
